

BCS OUTLAWS

The Outlaws are a beep baseball team located in the Bryan/College Station area. Beep baseball is an adaptive sport for athletes who are blind and visually impaired. The Outlaws have been competing as a team in the National Beep Baseball Association (NBBA) since 2014. This team provides an opportunity for athletes who are blind to participate in a sport at an extremely competitive level. The sport fosters leadership and teamwork skills, as well as a sense of community and instills self-confidence in our players.

Here are some quotes from the players themselves:

“This team means more than I originally thought it would to me. Getting into the sport I thought it would just be another fun hobby, but it turned into a family. I also gained skills I was not expecting to, such as communication, teamwork, and building confidence on the field, which truly translates to confidence off the field.” - Alex #5

“Growing up, I played lots of different sports. Once I started losing significant amounts of my vision, I felt like I couldn’t compete in sports at a high level anymore. Beep baseball and this team have given me that opportunity to compete in the highest level of competition, while building life-long friendships. For the first time in my life, my vision hasn’t hindered me from athletics, but it actually qualifies me to play!” - Hillary #12
